The Boston Foundation 2014 Annual Report

The Mission of the BOSTON FOUNDATION

As Greater Boston's community foundation since 1915, the Boston Foundation devotes its resources to building and sustaining a vital, prosperous city and region, where justice and opportunity are extended to everyone. It fulfills this mission in three principal ways:

- Making grants to nonprofit organizations and designing special funding initiatives to address this community's critical challenges;
- Working in partnership with donors to achieve high-impact philanthropy; and
- Serving as a civic hub and center of information, where ideas are shared, levers for change are identified, and common agendas for the future are developed.

CORRIDOR OF PROMISE

This is How We Build Vibrant Places

Introduction

he year 2014 was a remarkable one at the Boston Foundation. For the first time in our history, the Foundation's net assets reached the $1 billion mark. In addition, annual grant making by the Foundation and our donors shattered all records, at $112 million. Both of these watershed moments are a testament to the hundreds of generous people who have left bequests to the Foundation over the last century—and to those donors who strengthen everything we do by conducting their grant making through the Boston Foundation.

We also owe a deep debt of gratitude to contributors to our Civic Leadership Fund. Their gifts are helping to support all of our research, forums and public policy work. The annual drive for that fund also broke all records this year, which we see as a great vote of confidence going forward.

Next year, the Boston Foundation will celebrate 100 years as Greater Boston's community foundation. Since 1915, this foundation has responded to the needs of Bostonians coping with two world wars, a great depression and other seemingly-impossible challenges. It has also seeded innovation by providing crucial early funding to more than 100 new nonprofits and ambitious projects, such as the cleanup of Boston Harbor. In recent years, the Foundation has expanded the very definition of "community foundation," by adding civic leadership to the work—acting as a hub for fresh data and stimulating dialogue—and playing a crucial role in public policy gains that are strengthening not only Greater Boston, but the entire Commonwealth.

None of this could have been accomplished without our donors and without the leadership of an extremely committed board. This year, we said goodbye to two highly-valued members of our Board of Directors. One is Binkley Shorts, who chaired our investment committee and was a wonderful voice on behalf of our donors. The other is Micho Spring, who chaired our compensation committee and helped to establish the Latino Legacy Fund at the Foundation. We thank them for their commitment and service. We also welcomed Linda Mason, founder of the early care and education organization Bright Horizons, to our board. We know she will make important contributions going forward.

The Boston Foundation has two sweeping goals for Greater Boston. One is to see the people of our community be successful and thrive. The other is to help build vibrant, safe and affordable places. This is the second in a series of annual reports exploring the nonprofits we fund, the special initiatives we support and the policy work we conduct in order to meet these goals.

The stories here focus on the Fairmount Corridor, a geographic area that we believe is ripe for nothing less than transformational change. This corridor stretches for more than nine miles along the MBTA's revitalized Fairmount Commuter Line. It is home to almost 200,000 residents of the neighborhoods of Dorchester, Roxbury, Mattapan and Hyde Park. The vast majority of Boston's children live in this area and their families struggle with high rates of poverty and unemployment and low levels of educational attainment.

But, as you will see in the stories in this report, those deficits and challenges do not define these places or the people who live in them. Instead, we see resourceful community development corporations building safe and affordable housing, innovative nonprofits helping to train the workforce of the future, people joining together to encourage each other to build their economic strength—and artists sparking the creativity of entire neighborhoods. Read these stories and be encouraged about the future of this extraordinary corridor of promise.

Behind all of these stories is the most flexible resource the Boston Foundation has to make a profound difference in Greater Boston. It is called the Permanent Fund for Boston and it serves as the Foundation's endowment—making all of the work we do in Boston's neighborhoods possible. This year, we launched a special "Campaign for Boston" to strengthen this endowment. The success of the campaign, which already has received leadership support from deeply-committed Bostonians, will give the Boston Foundation the capacity to continue its work throughout our centennial year and far beyond it.

About the BOSTON FOUNDATION

ounded in 1915, the Boston Foundation is Greater Boston's community foundation—one of the first and today one of the largest and most innovative community foundations in the nation. With more than 1,000 separate funds established by hundreds of philanthropists, the Foundation has some $1 billion in assets.

The Boston Foundation's vision is of a Greater Boston where the people are successful and thriving and the neighborhoods are vibrant, safe and affordable. Our approach involves supporting programs that directly help people through grant making—and improving the systems that affect everyone in our city and region through civic leadership and public policy change. In close partnership with our donors and other partners, we have five priorities:

Education Health Jobs Neighborhoods
Arts and Culture

Helping Donors Achieve HIGH-IMPACT PHILANTHROPY

Boston Foundation donors measure their philanthropy by impact created, not just dollars given. Through hundreds of Donor Advised Funds, our donors make grants in Greater Boston, across the United States and around the world. Hundreds of our donors also have also invested in the future of Greater Boston through gifts or bequests to the Permanent Fund for Boston—the city's only permanent endowment. Boston Foundation donors and other philanthropists also work with The Philanthropic Initiative (TPI) to maximize their giving through specialized consulting services.

Providing MAJOR FUNDING to Nonprofit Organizations

Through grant making and special initiatives in Greater Boston, we support nonprofits directly and work to strengthen these important organizations and their leaders through a range of activities designed to enhance the long-term vitality of the Massachusetts nonprofit sector. Large, multi-year grants to go high-impact nonprofit organizations and programs and smaller annual grants go to promising ideas and projects.

Promoting Systemic Change Through CIVIC LEADERSHIP

With crucial support from the Civic Leadership Fund at the Boston Foundation, the Foundation is a major civic leader for Greater Boston and our region. We conduct this work through a formula that has helped to shape public policy in K-12 education, community colleges, health and wellness, municipal financing, cultural facilities funding and other areas. The formula includes: Cutting Edge Research; Major Forums and Convenings; Strategic, Proactive Grant Making; Task Forces and Coalitions; Communications and Media; and Deep Public Policy Work.

CORRIDOR OF PROMISE This Is How We Build Vibrant Places

magine a region so populous that it would be ranked the third-largest city in New England. Now picture this major urban area with no effective rail system—close to 200,000 residents stranded without an efficient way to commute to their jobs, go to school, or just do the weekly grocery shopping.

For many years, this was the story of the people who live along the Fairmount Line in Boston. For decades, they watched as trains flew by, barreling from Hyde Park to South Station with no stops in between.

All of that began to change close to 20 years ago, when a grassroots movement—seeded by grants from the Boston Foundation—rose up, sparking what would become the largest community led planning initiative in the city's history. The movement was spearheaded by the Greater Four Corners Action Coalition, which advocated forcefully for new stations in Roxbury, Dorchester and Mattapan. With access to the Fairmount Line, residents could trade hour-long bus trips for quick 10-15 minute commutes downtown.

As part of its focus on strengthening the people and places of Boston, the Boston Foundation saw the promise in the Fairmount Corridor and seized the opportunity to make a profound difference in its future—investing hundreds of thousands of dollars in community planning and millions in strengthening neighborhoods. The Foundation has made major grants to nonprofits and used its convening role to coordinate activities. Many community groups also have joined the fight. The result is that three stations already have opened and more are being built. In addition, the communities along the corridor are getting stronger and more self-sufficient.

The success of this effort is even more extraordinary when the demographics of the area are considered. The unemployment rate is high, at 17.4 percent, and the average income is $21,000 below the city average. Educational attainment is low—27 percent of residents have not graduated from high school. Almost one-third of the residents are under 18 and more than a third of those children are poor. Homicide rates are twice the citywide average.

Behind the statistics, however, are the people. People determined to live and raise their children in neighborhoods that are diverse, vibrant and safe. People who are building small businesses, working in nonprofits, advocating for better schools, making art, growing healthy food in community gardens and enjoying a thriving nature center.

The stories that follow touch on the impact of just a few of the investments the Boston Foundation has made in recent years, but they represent hundreds of other stories being written every day in this remarkable corridor of promise.

Deyanira Gonzales had been living with her two children in a shelter for more than three years when a social worker told her about a new development in Dorchester that she could afford with her earnings as a house cleaner. "All I could think of was enjoying a new home where there would be no mice and the children would be safe," recalls Ms. Gonzales, now the mother of three. She and her family moved into a spacious three-bedroom apartment in the Levedo building at 245 Talbot Avenue in 2011.

The unusual V-shaped complex at the intersection of Talbot and Mallard avenues is built atop a remediated tract that once housed a shoe factory and a used-car lot. Now home to 24 households earning less than 60 percent of area median income, it is one of the many affordable transitoriented developments rising along the Fairmount Line with support from the Boston Foundation's Fairmount Corridor Initiative.

The Levedo Building has commercial space at the street level, a large outdoor common area and "green" features such as rooftop solar panels, drought-resistant landscaping and energy efficient construction that earned it a LEED silver designation. Just a block from the new Talbot Avenue commuter rail station and a short walk to bustling Codman Square, the building is part of the Talbot Norfolk Triangle Eco-Innovation District.

A $1 million, five-year Boston Foundation grant to the Fairmount/Indigo Line Community Development

Collaborative in 2010 "was instrumental in bringing the project to fruition," says Gail Latimore, Executive Director of the Codman Square Neighborhood Development Corporation, a member of the Collaborative and developer of the Levedo Building. "It helped defray our operating costs, build political support and inform project goals."

Fired Up About Food in NEWMARKET

amal Scott, 41 and the father of three, has been a bank teller, a go-kart mechanic and an electrician. But nothing fires him up like food, and he's now turning his passion into purpose by training as a certified culinarian at the New England Center for Arts & Technology (NECAT).

The new job training and educational center, which opened just last year in the city's Newmarket Industrial District, prepares unemployed and underemployed adults for a career in the culinary arts. The 21-week intensive program is taught by chefs whose credentials include teaching at Le Cordon Bleu in Cambridge. The center, modeled on and affiliated with Pittsburgh's Manchester-Bidwell Corp., is an intentionally beautiful space meant to nourish the spirit as well as the mind. Original photographs and paintings—many donated by the Art Connection—hang on the walls; vases of fresh flowers brighten every tabletop.

"We invested a lot of time and effort to create a world-class environment," says Maarten Hemsley, president and founder. "We intend to be the premier culinary school of our kind in Boston. That's our mission."

NECAT students pay a modest registration fee but no tuition. The costs are underwritten by grants, including a major investment by the Boston Foundation. So far, more than half of the trainees have come from the predominantly minority neighborhoods of Roxbury, Dorchester and Mattapan. Their average age is 40.

"I heard about this program in February and I haven't missed a day since I enrolled," says Scott, who works part-time in addition to his studies. "To be a part of something like this in its infancy is beautiful," he marvels. "I will always be tied to this school and I'm so excited to see where it's going. In five years, 10 years, what's it going to be?"

"Lifting Each Other Up" in DUDLEY SQUARE

he approach taken by the Family Independence Initiative (FII) is brilliant in its simplicity. Based on this country's long history of people forging a path to the middle class by forming informal networks, FII helps to catalyze networks of families and friends who work together to improve their economic mobility and generally support each other.

Hundreds of families living along the Fairmount Corridor have been engaged in the work through investments in FII and Metropolitan Boston Housing economic mobility models. Now, the Dudley Street Neighborhood Initiative (DSNI) is partnering with FII, adding hundreds of additional families to the mix.

One of the groups created through the partnership with DSNI meets monthly at the district headquarters of the Boston Police Department in the Dudley Square area of Roxbury. Some of the eight participating families have known each other through neighborhood watch work they have engaged in to reduce crime. "We know each other and we like each other," says participant Dacia Thompson. "We really are an extended family."

Each member has three personal goals the others help them stick to—and the group as a whole has three overarching goals they see as "trust building" and "team building." One is what they call "self care," which is designed to alleviate the daily stresses of their lives by making sure everyone takes some "me time." Another is a financial goal, which takes the shape of a savings club. "Each family puts in a certain amount every week and we give it to someone else in the group to save it for us," explains Thompson. The third goal involves home-improvement projects that the team members help each other accomplish. In less than six months, the group's members have done just what the FII model encourages and more. "We support each other and we encourage each other," explains Thompson. "We lift each other up."

Creative Placemaking in UPHAM'S CORNER

rtist Cedric Douglas wanted to use the "language of the street" to engage Dorchester's Upham's Corner community in making art—and so he created the "UP Truck," a mobile art lab that traveled the neighborhood this summer. Cedric's was the winning entry in a Boston Foundation and Dudley Street Neighborhood Initiative (DSNI) competition for a public art project to celebrate and inspire the cultural richness of Upham's Corner. Even he was surprised at the extent to which residents embraced the truck. By inviting residents to help create canvases, screen-printed T-shirts and robots, the UP Truck team gathered information about the type of art residents want in their neighborhood.

Upham's Corner was the site of a pilot program for an initiative that will embrace what is now being called the "Fairmount Cultural Corridor." It was also the Foundation's first foray into "creative placemaking," a national movement that is bringing together public, private and community partners to help shape the character of neighborhoods across the country through arts and cultural activities. The Foundation and its partners collaborated over the past two years in Upham's Corner, and now are joining with additional partners to expand their work down the line into Four Corners.

In addition to the UP Truck, numerous events took place celebrating the community's rich cultural assets, including two large events led by DSNI and Upham's Corner Main Street involving scores of performers. The Strand Theater was the site of summer movie nights, Jose Mateo Ballet Theater's holiday performances of the Nutcracker and live jazz from the Berklee College of Music. And Design Studio for Social Intervention created a pop-up food space called "Public Kitchen," where residents shared recipes and broke bread together. Going forward, 10 artists are receiving public art fellowships and four other artists will be in residence in Fairmount Corridor neighborhoods.

Supporting a Sanctuary in the Heart of Boston

nne and Peter Brooke have devoted much of their lives to iconic Boston institutions. Peter is a life trustee and former chairman of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's board, inspired by an abiding love of classical music passed along to him by his father. Anne chairs the board of the Friends of the Public Garden, which is dedicated to preserving Boston's great public parks. But it is a green space in the neighborhood of Mattapan that has captured the imagination of both of them—and they want more people to become aware of the gem that is the Boston Nature Center, a part of the Mass Audubon sanctuary system.

The story of their commitment begins in the late 1980s when Anne Brooke was asked to chair a major capital campaign for Mass Audubon. She was delighted to do it, with one proviso—the organization would open a nature center in Boston. "I pointed out that we were a statewide organization with no physical presence in Boston," says Anne. "I knew we desperately needed a sanctuary for the people in our city—especially the children." Around the same time, the city

Located in Mattapan, the Boston Nature Center is a 67-acre community-based natural area and sanctuary. Two miles of trails and boardwalks traverse meadows and wetlands with 150 species of birds, 46 species of butterflies and 350 species of plants. The Center also is home to one of the oldest and largest community gardens in the city, a preschool, a camp, and year-round programs to foster an appreciation for nature and the environment.

and the state were trying to decide what to do with a large parcel of land in Mattapan, where the former Boston State Hospital had been located. "We looked at the land and realized that it was an ideal site," explains Anne. "It was a perfect sanctuary for Boston."

Mass Audubon purchased the land and Mayor Thomas M. Menino stepped forward with nearly $2 million in support from the City of Boston's George Robert White Fund. Eventually, a conservation center on the grounds was named after White, a Boston businessman and philanthropist. It was the first green municipal building in Boston.

As the project moved forward, the Boston Foundation stepped up to the plate with a $100,000 grant from the Permanent Fund for Boston. Today, thousands of children and their families have access to a rich menu of programs at the sanctuary, including the Pathways to Nature Preschool, a 14,000-square-foot natural play space, the Clark-Cooper Community Gardens, which provide food and a green oasis for 260 local families, and environmental education programs serving thousands of students in Boston's public schools.

Both Anne and Peter are determined to broaden the base of support for the Center and have supported it through grants from their Donor Advised Fund at the Boston Foundation. "The Center, now in its eleventh year, is set in a disadvantaged part of the city," Anne says. "It serves families, especially children, who have never had the opportunity to experience nature before. It is located in a part of the city not known for its wealth and not visible to those who could provide financial support. Financing the robust programs offered at the Center is a constant challenge. We want people to visit the Center because when they do, they will want to support this remarkable sanctuary in the very heart of Boston."

Nourishing Children in Need

hree years ago, the parent company of Stop & Shop Supermarkets was looking for a trusted partner to help it develop and implement a strategic grant-making initiative. Ahold USA had recently merged two charitable foundations operated by its U.S. divisions into Our Family Foundation. It wanted to undertake an ambitious philanthropic strategy to carry out the new foundation's mission.

Our Family Foundation had multiple goals for its philanthropy: Improve the quality of life for children, fight hunger and build healthy communities. The board retained The Philanthropic Initiative (TPI), an internationally recognized philanthropic advisory practice that is part of the Boston Foundation, to help determine where the needs were greatest, design a high-impact strategy to address these needs, and structure grants for long-term impact.

The result? A $9 million, three-year commitment to fight child hunger. Last year, Our Family Foundation awarded multi-year grants to 21 regional food banks and child hunger organizations so they can provide nearly 10 million more meals for underserved children in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic regions.

"The Fighting Child Hunger initiative has enabled Stop & Shop and Our Family Foundation to make a real difference in getting healthy meals to many more children, and in building long-term capacity to continue these expanded efforts," says Joe Kelley, President of Stop & Shop's New England Division and an Our Family Foundation board member. "We could not have accomplished all of this without TPI's initial help in designing the initiative, and their ongoing expertise, support and guidance."

In Eastern Massachusetts, where one in nine residents don't know where their next meal is coming from (and one in four of them are children), The Greater Boston Food Bank (GBFB) in the Fairmount Corridor is using its Fighting Child Hunger grant to create school-based food pantries; provide more fresh meat, produce and dairy products at Women, Infants and Children (WIC) distribution sites; and support summer feeding programs. This year, through the grant, GBFB will acquire and distribute enough food for 900,000 nutritious meals, says President and CEO Catherine D'Amato, who is also Vice Chair of the Boston Foundation's Board. Other Fighting Child Hunger grantees in Massachusetts include the Worcester County Food Bank, the Food Bank of Western Massachusetts and Project Bread.

The Board of Our Family Foundation also wanted to engage employees, so TPI helped create the Ahold Associate Volunteer Program. Through this program, the Foundation supplements its Fighting Child Hunger support with small grants that "match" associate volunteer efforts at local food bank affiliate.

"It is important that we give back to our customers, communities and the organizations within them," notes Mr. Kelley, who sits on the GBFB board. "Our associates are active partners."

Helping to Shape the Future of the City They Love SANDRA AND PAUL EDGERLEY

andra and Paul Edgerley were born in different parts of the country—she in New Jersey and he in Kansas—but they are joined now by their deep affection for Boston. Sandra Edgerley is a prodigious volunteer for the city's nonprofits, especially those meeting the needs of children. Her mentor was the great Myra Kraft—and she followed in her footsteps by chairing the board of Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston and now serving on the Board of the Boston Foundation.

"I feel very fortunate to have the opportunity to be a part of the Boston Foundation," says Sandra. "The more I learn, the more impressed I am with the way it is driving solutions on so many fronts and using data to measure its effectiveness."

"We focus a great deal of our giving on children and on education," says Paul, who is a Managing Director at Bain Capital and also has served on nonprofit boards, including Children's Hospital's. "We both benefited so much by attending good schools when we were young and great colleges—so we know first-hand how important an education is. We think the Foundation's work with community colleges is so important because those institutions have the potential to give people the skills they need to lead a successful life."

That impulse to give the people of Greater Boston the opportunity to lead successful lives has led Sandra and Paul Edgerley to step forward and help to launch the Campaign for Boston to strengthen the Permanent Fund for Boston. "The Permanent Fund is at the heart of everything the Foundation does," explains Sandra.

The Foundation's endowment has been built through bequests left to the Permanent Fund for Boston by visionary and forward-thinking Bostonians. The Edgerleys are members of a Centennial Circle of donors who are pledging outright leadership gifts of $1 million to the Permanent Fund for Boston in honor of the Boston Foundation's Centennial in 2015.

"We think Boston is a truly great city," says Sandra. "And it is the people who have invested in the Permanent Fund for Boston before us who have helped to make it great. That endowment has given so many new organizations the resources they needed to start and grow and prosper. Ultimately, it has helped our community and our citizens thrive."

To the extent that Boston thrives, it is because of the ingenuity and generosity of its people and their commitment to solving the big problems. For close to 100 years, a tremendous amount of this ingenuity and generosity has lived in and through the Boston Foundation.

In 2015, the Foundation will celebrate its 100th Anniversary. This centennial moment offers a unique opportunity for those who deeply love Boston to strengthen the Foundation's endowment, the Permanent Fund for Boston, equipping the Foundation to continue its history of making vital contributions to a never-ending process of civic reinvention.

The Campaign for BOSTON

Responding to Need Seeding Innovation Changing the Game

For close to 100 years, the Boston Foundation has served as the primary philanthropy for Boston—from its earliest days of responding to the human needs of immigrants and the poor, to seeding innovation through grants for more than 100 new nonprofits and innovative ideas—to helping change the very systems that affect the lives of everyone in our region. All of this work has been supported by the Permanent Fund for Boston. We invite you to explore the many ways you can contribute to the Campaign for Boston and help shape the future of the city you love.

those who want the prestige of a private foundation, but none of the administrative, legal, tax and regulatory burdens of a private foundation.

MAXIMIZING YOUR GIVING WITH TPI

The Philanthropic Initiative (TPI), now a business unit of the Boston Foundation, is an internationally recognized provider of philanthropic consulting and management services. A pioneer in the field of strategic philanthropy for 25 years, TPI continues to advise individuals, families, foundations and corporations in the U.S. and around the globe, helping clients maximize the impact of their philanthropy by defining priorities and strategies, implementing programs and evaluating success. Building from the values and interests of each client, TPI delivers innovative, customized solutions.

SUPPORTING SYSTEMIC CHANGE THROUGH THE CIVIC LEADERSHIP FUND

By working with the Boston Foundation, you become part of a dynamic community of change makers. Through policy leadership, the Boston Foundation has helped to leverage hundreds of millions of dollars in federal and state funds, pass legislation in K-12 education, restructure our community college system, provide crucial state funds for cultural facilities and much more. This work is supported by the Civic Leadership Fund at the Boston Foundation, which is contributed to by hundreds of donors every year.

HELPING YOU PLAN A LASTING LEGACY WITH THE PERMANENT FUND FOR BOSTON

As the Foundation's endowment, the Permanent Fund for Boston does today what it will do 100 years from now: It provides the resources the Foundation needs to respond nimbly to the most pressing issues of the day. We can help you plan a lasting legacy by creating a Named Fund or Field of Interest Fund as part of the Permanent Fund for Boston. A number of Boston Foundation donors and others take advantage of the opportunity to make gifts to the Permanent Fund for Boston through a broad and diverse group of planned giving vehicles. We can help you plan the best way to incorporate this kind of legacy giving into your estate planning, including gifts by will or trust, gifts of retirement plan assets and life insurance and gifts that pay you income and preserve assets for your heirs.

For more information about becoming a donor or making a planned or legacy gift to the Boston Foundation, call the Senior Director of Leadership Giving at 617-338-3910 or visit www.tbf.org/solve.

A Focus on People and on Place APPLYING FOR A GRANT

he Boston Foundation has a strategic framework, called Thriving People/Vibrant Places, which guides our grant making, research, convening, public policy work and special initiatives.

All of the resources for our grant making in Greater Boston are from the Permanent Fund for Boston, which has been built over the years through gifts and bequests from Boston area donors who care deeply about our community.

The Foundation invests the majority of its resources in proven or promising organizations and initiatives that seek to deepen their impact or bring their work to scale and are significantly aligned with the two major goals and five objectives below:

GOALS: Greater Boston residents are successful and thriving

Greater Boston communities are vibrant, safe and affordable

OBJECTIVES:

- Improve outcomes for Boston's residents across the education pipeline
- Increase the health and wellness of Greater Boston residents

- Increase job growth and economic equity and competitiveness in Greater Boston
- Increase the livability, affordability and safety of Boston neighborhoods
- Enhance civic and cultural vibrancy in Greater Boston

Types of Support

There are three principal types of support available from the Permanent Fund for Boston:

are 150 to 175 organizations in the Foundation's competitive grants portfolio. Most of these partners are doing work that is highly aligned with the approaches and end-state results to which the Foundation seeks to contribute. A limited subset of those partners are doing important work outside of those areas. Over the past three years, the Foundation has made a shift toward making larger, multi-year, operating support grants to core partners, as well as program and project grants where appropriate. Applying for a competitive grant starts with a simple online Letter of Inquiry (LOI). Please speak with a member of the Foundation's Program staff before submitting an LOI.

VISION FUND: These are grants of up to $7,500 for projects up to $15,000, awarded to organizations addressing a critical community need for capacity building efforts or pilot and demonstration projects including program design, evaluation and research with an emphasis on enhancing organizational impact. Priority is given to organizations that are not aligned with the Foundation's five program areas. Applying for a Vision Fund grant starts with an online application accessed from our website.

INITIATIVE GRANTS: A significant amount of the Foundation's grant funds are distributed through special initiatives. Often, these funds are not open to broad application, such as grants from Success Boston. At times—as with SkillWorks—there are periodic Requests for Proposals (RFPs) for organizations that are defined as eligible by the specific initiative. Information about such RFPs is available on the Foundation's website.

We invite you to visit our website for detailed information about how to reach us and how apply for a grant. Please go to www.tbf.org and choose "Investing in Nonprofits."

he Boston Foundation has a mandate both to fulfill its role as Greater Boston's community foundation today—by maximizing dollars available for making grants—and to ensure that the charitable dollars entrusted to the Foundation are available to continue this work tomorrow and in perpetuity. Robust development efforts and a well-diversified investment strategy enable the Foundation to meet these objectives.

Fund for the 21st Century

The Boston Foundation offers three separate investment pools within the Fund for the 21st Century. These three pools allow donors to select the option that best matches the time horizon of their charitable giving plans. Donors may also customize their asset allocation by investing among all three pools. The Balanced Plus Pool asset mix is expected to produce the highest long-term investment return. Accordingly, the Boston Foundation invests its endowment assets in the Balanced Plus Pool.

Financial Oversight

The Foundation's Investment Committee establishes investment policy and monitors the individual investment managers and their performance, and the Board sets each year's spending rate. The Investment Committee is assisted by an independent investment consulting firm.

The assets of the Balanced Plus Pool include not only traditional stock and bond investments, but participation in private equity, venture capital, real assets (real estate, timber and energy) and flexible capital strategies. Diversification among multiple asset classes helps to reduce the volatility of the Foundation's endowment and should moderate market risk.

The Spending Policy

By using a spending policy, the Foundation helps to ensure that the charitable funds will be protected for the future, while continuing to have the most impact today. The 2014 spending rate was 6.4% for its permanently restricted discretionary funds. For Fiscal Year 2015, the Board again approved a spending rate of 6.4% for its discretionary endowment. The Foundation uses a smoothing mechanism that helps balance the current endowment market value and the previous level of spending. Spending is equal to 70% of spending from the previous year, adjusted for inflation, plus 30% of the 6.4% spending rate applied to the current market value. The approved spending policy rate for designated endowment funds is 5.0% for Fiscal Year 2015.

The Philanthropic Initiative

The Philanthropic Initiative, Inc. (TPI) is a significant business unit of the Foundation. TPI designs, carries out and evaluates philanthropic programs for individual donors, families, foundations and corporations. The experience and reputation of TPI significantly expands the range of philanthropic services the Foundation offers. During Fiscal Year 2014, the operations of TPI added $2.4 million of service fee income to the operations of the Foundation.

Financial Analysis

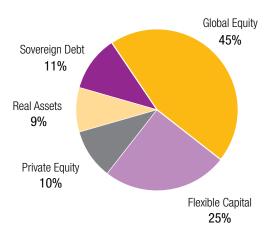

Total assets of the Boston Foundation increased from $896 million to $1 billion at June 30, 2014. For the year, net investment returns were 15.5%. During this period, the Foundation received $112 million in contributions and made $111 million in grants. Expenditures for program support and operating expenses totaled $21.1 million thus explaining the change in total assets. The investment environment was positive during the year and the Foundation continued its investment in the communities that it serves.

Audited Financial Statements

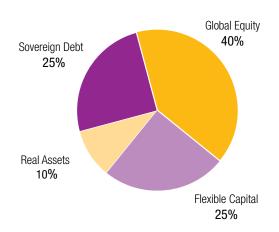

The Foundation's financial statements are prepared under policies and procedures overseen by the Foundation's independent Audit Committee and the Board of Directors. The statements are audited by KPMG LLP. A summary of the audited financial statements is shown on page 28. The audited statements and Form 990 are available on our website at www.tbf.org.

Boston Foundation FUNDS

ver the last 100 years, more than 1,000 individuals, families and businesses have strengthened the Greater Boston community immeasurably by establishing and contributing to funds at the Boston Foundation—and thousands more have contributed to funds held by the Foundation. The Foundation helps donors achieve high impact philanthropy and take advantage of planned and legacy giving opportunities to benefit the future of our community. The following pages list all of the funds that are held by the Foundation and the many donors who have contributed to them. Each fund has its own name, but all of them gain strength from being managed and invested together—and all of them contribute to strengthening Greater Boston's community foundation for today and the future.

Gifts to the Permanent Fund for Boston

The Permanent Fund for Boston is the Boston Foundation's endowment fund. It provides the crucial resources the Foundation needs for its grant making in Greater Boston. In honor of its Centennial, the Foundation has launched a special "Campaign for Boston" to strengthen this fund. We thank these donors who contributed to this important fund this year.

PLANNED and LEGACY GIFTS Received

Many Boston Foundation donors and others take advantage of the opportunity to make gifts to the Boston Foundation through a broad and diverse group of planned giving vehicles, including bequests, charitable remainder and lead trusts, charitable gift annuities, and gifts of retirement plan assets and life insurance. Many of these gifts will support the Permanent Fund for Boston, which gives the Foundation the resources it needs to conduct its grant making in the Greater Boston community. The following planned and legacy gifts were received in 2014 and are very gratefully acknowledged.

Donors to the CIVIC LEADERSHIP FUND

This critical fund helps to fuel the Boston Foundation's highly effective formula for civic leadership, which includes: publishing cutting edge research; holding major forums and convenings; conducting strategic and proactive grant making; forming task forces and coalitions; using communications and the media—and, most important, helping to shape public policy to advance opportunity for everyone. A number of areas of life in Greater Boston and throughout the Commonwealth have benefited tremendously from this work, including public education, college completion, community colleges, health and wellness, cultural facilities, smart growth housing, municipal finance and criminal justice. We thank all of this year's generous donors.

The PERMANENT FUND FOR BOSTON

The Permanent Fund for Boston is the Boston Foundation's endowment and the most flexible fund it holds, giving our staff and board members the crucial resources they need to respond to the most pressing issues facing contemporary Greater Boston. Many donors have contributed to this fund since the Foundation was first established in 1915. In honor of its Centennial in 2015, the Boston Foundation has launched the Campaign for Boston to strengthen this important fund, which supports grants in education, health and wellness, jobs, neighborhoods and arts and culture–all areas that have a profound impact on the quality of life in Greater Boston. The following lists include donors who have made gifts totaling more than $5,000 to this fund, with the year of their first contribution noted in parentheses.
