

Camila Rojas Pagan

Executive Director, Beat the Odds

Camila Rojas Pagan has been an advocate, community leader, and youth mentor for the last fifteen years. Currently, she is the executive director of Beat the Odds Boston, a newly formed creative youth development nonprofit. She also serves as community program manager at Casa Myrna Vasquez, the largest domestic violence agency in Boston, where she has worked for the last decade. She started her career in the New York Public Schools as a youth specialist. Camila is a graduate of Cambridge College and the recipient of a Nonprofit Management Graduate Certificate from Boston University.

- Leadership Superpower: I am great at empowering others and building relationships with people. I help others see the greatness inside themselves.
- What brings her joy: Being with family, chilling and vibing out with friends, and the way that music makes me feel.
- Theme Song: “I’m Every Woman” by Whitney Houston